Khrushchev-Kennedy Coincidence

CPYRGHT

COULD KHRUSHCHEV have ordered the assassination of President John F. Kennedy?

The Warren Commission concluded on Sept. 27, 1964, that Lee Harvey Oswald was solely responsible for the killing of the President.

A month later, Soviet Premier Khrushchev was ousted as premier and Soviet Communist party chief.

Is it possible that the U.S. Government discovered the Soviet culpability, and knowing the explosive dangers of touching off a holocaust of a war, presented the Russians with this information and demanded "an eye for an eye," that is, an elimination of the chief officer of the Soviet Union?

There are many theories and doubts that have arisen since the Warren report concluded Oswald was the sole killer. Most of these have been pooh-poohed, perhaps rightly so. But all theories should be examined in a nation based on the people's right to know.

AN ALLEN-SCOTT column in this newspaper the other day described a baffling letter sent by Oswald to the Soviet Embassy in which referred to highly secret information just 10 days before the assassination. The FBI intercepted the letter, and later confirmed that the CIA had a note in its files that Oswald had met with one of the top KGB Soviet officers in the Western Hemisphere.

Knowing Oswald's ties with the Soviet Union (his visit there) and Khrushchev's hatred of J. F. Kennedy (he purposely stepped on the U.S. President's foot in their first meeting and in every way tried to humble Kennedy), it is indeed a remarkable coincidence that Khrushchev was fired less than 30 days after the Warren report which declared Oswald the "sole" killer. It is a further coincidence that Khrushchev's name has been vilified, and the ex-premier himself roundly denounced by the Soviets after his dismissal.

Of all the wild theories that have been advanced, it is strange that no one has noticed this coincidence.
